Cardiovascular Symposium

On October 3, specialists from University of Utah Health will share their expertise in the treatment and management of cardiovascular diseases.

Primary care providers and specialists are invited to join the online broadcast of this evening event. Read more.

DATE: Thursday, October 3, 2019
TIME: 6:15 PM MDT / 5:15 PM PDT
CME credit: three hours
Join online: https://uofuhealth.zoom.us/j/380955144

Behavioral Health
ECHO is BACK

Every Thursday at noon, experts from University Neuropsychiatric Institute provide continuing behavioral health education for primary care providers and specialists.

Topics include Substance Use Disorders, Mood/Anxiety Disorders, Personality Disorders, Crisis & Diversion, and Clinical Psychopharmacology.

Led by a robust team of psychiatric specialists, this program gives participants the opportunity to present patient cases and learn best practices on the diagnosis and treatment of mental health disorders. Topics will cover commonly seen cases in primary care, including pharmacological and non-pharmacological treatments.

Attendees receive one hour of CME credit. To register, visit the Project ECHO website.

Commitment to Value - Outpatient
Quality Improvement in High Value Care

Join us on Tuesday, October 8th at noon MT, for a presentation by Diane Liu, MD. Dr. Liu is the Director of the Utah Pediatric Partnership to Improve Healthcare Quality, and Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at University of Utah Health.

To join this meeting, visit https://uofuhealth.zoom.us/j/968139609.

To read this newsletter and the related stories online, go to tinyurl.com/uofuhealthnewsletter
Please direct questions about this material to jared.price@hsc.utah.edu
Pediatrics teleECHO returns September 25

Health care providers of all levels are welcome to participate in this tele-education and case-based learning opportunity. The first module will focus on Adolescent Health through January 2020. This series is held every Wednesday at noon.

Join us on October 23 for a session dedicated to HPV vaccination, in partnership with Utah Area Health Education Centers (AHEC). HPV vaccination rates in Utah are particularly low in comparison to other states. Join us for a discussion on strategies to engage patients on this important topic. Participants receive one hour of CME credit or nurse contact hours. To register for this series, visit the Project ECHO website.

Commitment to Value - Inpatient: Bundled Payments

The October Commitment to Value – Inpatient session will feature Zac Watne, Senior Manager of Payment Strategy and Innovation at University of Utah Health. Zac will teach on the topic of “Bundled Payments.”

Join us on October 9 at noon MDT. This session will be held by video conference. To join the conference, just click the following link: https://uofuhealth.zoom.us/j/968139609.

Utah Primary Care Summit

The Utah Primary Care Summit is will be held on October 18, 2019. This summit will discuss primary care solutions to Utah’s priority health concerns. Topics include: lowering healthcare costs, increasing the quality of care, and improving population health outcomes.

Registration is required for those who wish to attend this conference. For more information, visit the Utah Area Health Education Centers website.

Newborn ICU Conference: Caring for Babies

This conference on Human Dimensions of Caring will be held in Salt Lake City on October 10, 2019. Join leaders in the field of neonatal care and nursing for this half-day conference, held on the University of Utah Campus. Read more.