DE-ESCALATION TRAINING

As health care providers, we see people when they are at their worst, when they are in crisis. You'll learn how to identify these crisis behaviors. We will discuss how to recognize an escalating crisis, and how to respond appropriately.

This one-hour class is designed for clinical teams and administrators. We'll discuss specifics from your clinic, and teach de-escalation skills that are transferable to different situations.

LEADERSHIP COURSES FOR HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONALS

For the last several years, managers at University of Utah Health have increased their leadership skills by attending iLEAD courses. Two courses are currently available:

- Employee Engagement. This course teaches how leaders can strengthen the emotional connection between employees and the organization. You’ll learn about the research behind what makes employees enjoy their work, and identify actions to improve engagement.
- Managing vs Leading. This course discusses how to establish influence by identifying the difference between managing and leading. Inspire effort, build confidence in success, model and lead through vision and values.

New ECHO Series Launching This Month:
Integrative Primary Care & Substance Use Disorder Treatment ECHO
Every other Friday, noon – 1 pm, starting January 21, 2022

Additional Sessions on “off” Fridays, noon – 1 pm (Jan 28, Feb 11, etc.) in collaboration with Utah Rural Opioid Health Consortium (UROHC) and Nurse Education, Practice, Quality, and Retention Program (NEPQR) on topics more specific to opioids and nursing (final schedule TBD)

This ECHO series will focus on working with patients to recognize, diagnose, and treat substance use disorder (SUD). Topics will range from cultural awareness, harm reduction, diagnosis and treatment, to handling co-morbidities. Cases will be presented each session to help provide context to the content.

Additional sessions will be conducted with NEPQR and UROHC to more specifically address opioids in the community as well as the role of nurses in the care team for SUD.

New Sessions added for Pediatrics ECHO: Autism 101

Starting February 23 on the fourth Wednesday of each month through October 2022 from noon – 1 pm, we are adding an Autism 101 module to the 2022 ECHO series. During this additional ECHO Module we will focus on the unique needs of children with autism spectrum disorder (ASD). Faculty from the University of Utah Developmental Assessment Clinics will cover topics that are of importance to primary care providers including: early signs, autism screening tools, when to refer for an autism evaluation and how to communicate concerns to caregivers, components of the diagnostic evaluation, identification and management of common co-occurring conditions (such as insomnia, gastrointestinal problems, anxiety and ADHD) and more. Registration for the Autism 101 modules will be available soon on the Pediatrics ECHO website.
